COMPULSORY TRIMESTERS

All of our trimesters are compulsory trimesters. You are required to undertake the normal full-time study load (as outlined above) for each of these trimesters, as well as studying at least one subject face-to-face. The exceptions to this are Trimester 2X and Trimester 3X, where the study load is only one subject (see below).

TRIMESTERS 2X AND 3X

Kaplan Business School's Trimester 2 Accelerated, known as T2X, and Trimester 3 Accelerated, known as T3X, are complete but fast-tracked trimesters. They are delivered over a 6-7 week teaching duration. Key information for those students starting with us in T2X or T3X:

- A full-time study load for this trimester is just one subject, regardless of your course.
- It is delivered on-campus only.
- Subject offerings are limited.
- Trimester 2X and Trimester 3X are only available to new students.
- Trimester 2X and Trimester 3X students will have to overload in a future trimester to complete the course within their COE duration.

SUMMER STUDY BREAK

You may be eligible to apply for a break in your studies for Trimester 3 of the Kaplan Academic Calendar if you have met the following conditions:

- You have successfully completed your yearly, full-time study load in your course in Trimesters 1 and 2 in the same academic calendar year; and
- You will complete your course within your current CoE duration (without extension); and
- You are progressing satisfactorily through your course; and
- You have no outstanding fees owing to Kaplan and/or any unreturned library resources.

If you meet these requirements, you may apply for a Trimester 3 summer study break, using the Application for Reduced Study Load in the student portal. The Student Experience Team at your campus can advise you on the process. Please remember: You are still required to complete your course within the length of your CoE.

A summer study break will only be granted for Trimester 3 of the Kaplan Academic Calendar year and students will be expected to resume studies in Trimester 1 of the following year.

FAST TRACKING

Students at Kaplan often choose to fast track their studies in order to complete their course in a shorter time than the normal full-time study load.

If you wish to undertake this option, there are a few things you need to consider:

- In the first trimester of your course it is recommended that you not undertake more subjects than what is required for a normal full-time study load;
- You must always undertake the minimum number of subjects as listed above for Trimesters 1 and 2 unless you fall into one of the categories listed in the Under-Loading section below; and
- If you have successfully completed more than the full-time study load requirements for Trimesters 1 and 2, you are allowed to reduce the number of subjects accordingly in Trimester 3.

For example, if you are studying a Bachelor of Business course, and you have successfully completed 7 subjects in Trimesters 1 and 2, then you are only required to undertake 1 subject in Trimester 3.

All of the above need to fit in with the study plan recommended to you by the Student Experience Team at your campus.

UNDER-LOADING

There are only a few exceptions where you are allowed to take fewer subjects for your course than those indicated as a full-time study load as detailed above. These are:

- If it is the last trimester of your course; or
- For compelling and compassionate reasons; or
- If the subjects you need to complete your course are not being offered that trimester and you can still finish within the duration of your CoE.

All of the above are subject to approval by the relevant manager at Kaplan.

Further details regarding study loads can be found in our Academic Success Policy and Changes to Enrolment Policy or by speaking with the Student Experience Team at your campus.
